The Fresno Morning Republican.

VOL. VI, NO. 86. FRESNO, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1893. PRICE—5 CENTS.

TO REGULATE RATES

A Consummation Devoutly to be Wished.

TWO CENTS A MILE TO TRAVEL

Text of the Bill Introduced in the Legislature Yesterday—Other Bills.

THE SENATE.

SACRAMENTO, January 11.—A number of bills were introduced, among them one by Hart to create the counties of Putnam and Buena Vista out of portions of Tulare county, with county seats at Porterville and Tulare.

By Gesford, a bill making it the duty of the legislature to prescribe the railroad freights and fares, passenger rates not to exceed 2 cents per mile.

Godchaux's constitutional amendment abolishing the railroad commission and fixing charges for transportation, provides that for passengers no more than 2 cents per mile shall be charged; for freight and merchandise the charges are specified in what is ca led the California distance tariff, as adopted and issued by the western classification commission—which took effect January 1, 1893, and contains 2280 items of charges for distances from 5 miles to 1000.

The assembly joint resolution introduced by Mathews of San Benito and referred to the committee on federal relations, recites that congress on September 29, 1890, declared that certain railroad lands in Monterey, Fresno and San Benito counties were forfeited, which had been sold by the railroad to settlers at $2.50 per acre. The California congressional delegation is urged to secure the passage of an act refunding to the settlers all sums paid by them for the lands in excess of the government price of $1.25 per acre.

Adjourned.

THE ASSEMBLY.

SACRAMENTO, January 11.—Several bills were introduced and referred.

Schlesinger of San Francisco presented a resolution, which was read, providing for the appointment of a special committee of five by the speaker to investigate the acts of the railroad commissioners, as to whether they have performed their duties and have adopted proper schedules, rates and fares, as contemplated by law; the committee to have power to send for persons and papers, and to present articles of impeachment against any commissioner derelict in his duties. Referred to the committee on corporations.

Matthews introduced a joint resolution to refund money to certain settlers on government lands in Fresno, Monterey and San Benito counties.

A resolution by Dodge of Alameda for the appointment of a committee of six to investigate the Home for Adult Blind was adopted.

Godchaux introduced the same bill presented by Gesford in the senate, abolishing the board of railroad commissioners and empowering the legislature to fix the rates of freight and fares. It was referred to the committee on corporations.

Dress introduced a bill which was sent to the ways and means committee, abolishing the state drainage construction fund and transferring any moneys in the fund to the general fund.

Boyce of San Francisco introduced his Sunday rest bill, providing that all laborers shall have one day's rest in seven.

Adjourned.

Preparing for the Hunt.

BAKERSFIELD, January 11.—The Pacific coastfield trials will commence here Monday next. The outlook is very favorable, although many people say birds are not so plentiful as at the previous meeting. The people who have the affair in charge, however, say the coming grounds have been well preserved from pothunters and a good time is assured. Anyway a great many people are coming. The new railroad, called the Bakersfield & San Miguel, which is built about sixty miles out, runs through the valley and very near where the best hunting is found, and arrangements have been made with the railroad officials for special travel during the trials. A large number of fine dogs here are being trained.

Millions for Pensions.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—Commissioner Raum of the pension bureau appeared today before the sub-committee of the house committee on appropriations, which is preparing the pension appropriations bill. The original estimate for 1894 made by the commissioner was $165,000,000. A subsequent estimate a few days ago placed the amount required at $172,000,000. He was asked as to the reason of the increase, and explained his former figures by saying that he had presumed the new administration would not do as much work as his had done, and admitted that if it did allow as many pensions $172,000,000 would be needed.

After a Successor.

SACRAMENTO, January 11.—The joint Democratic caucus was held tonight to nominate a board of five trustees for the state library to take their seats March 1, 1894. A ticket had been prepared bearing the names of R. P. Hammond of San Francisco, E. D. Leake of Yolo, Dr. M. Gardner of Sacramento, F. L. Baldwin of San Joaquin, W. S. Green of Colusa, but this met with some opposition and Curtis Lindley of San Francisco was selected in place of Hammond. It is expected a joint ballot on trustees will be taken Friday, when the trustees will elect a librarian to succeed Perkins.

Too Much Powder.

LOS ANGELES, January 11.—Burglars blew open a safe in the office of Haywood Bros. & Co., furniture dealers, early this morning. The explosion was terrific and wrecked the building. The safe door was blown 120 feet into the street. The explosion attracted everybody in the neighborhood to the place and the burglars were scared away. There was only a small amount of money in the safe.

Hawley and Hiscock.

Wants an Increase.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—Robinson of Pennsylvania introduced in the house today a bill increasing from $1 to $2 per barrel the internal revenue tax on fermented liquors.

Heartrending Scenes.

COMO, Col., January 11.—Twenty-seven bodies were found in the chamber where the premature shot exploded, or in its immediate vicinity. Evidently the victims were killed outright by the explosion or knocked senseless by the shock and asphyxiated by deadly gases. The bodies were found in all sorts of agonizing positions, in many instances lying crossed or clasped together. The slow work of carrying the dead to the surface then commenced. In the meantime the shaft was surrounded by crowds of women and children, relatives of miners. The heartrending scene may be imagined when body after body was brought out and laid by the side of others, and the work of identification commenced. There are about 300 people at Kings and the heads of all the families are employed in the mines, which give work to about 200 men. The room in which the explosion occurred has been sealed up and will not be opened until the state inspector of mines, who left this morning, arrives at the scene of the disaster.

The Grand Jury Has It.

SACRAMENTO, January 11.—The court room of Justice Henry was packed at 10 o'clock this morning, the hour announced for the preliminary hearing of George B. Jefferis, the railroad engineer under arrest for the murder of Miss Ayres, the Brighton telegraph operator and station agent. District Attorney Ryan argued that is was useless to proceed with the examination at this time, as the case was being investigated in a thorough manner by the grand jury. A. L. Hart, attorney for the defense, insisted that his client was entitled to a speedy trial. Judge Henry continued the case to 10 o'clock next Friday morning.

Died from Pneumonia.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—Butler's death was due to pneumonia, superinduced by acute pneumonia. Up to yesterday he was in comparative good health, although he suffered from severe coughing spells. Interment will be at Lowell, Mass., but the date of the funeral is not fixed yet. Butler was 75 years of age.

Senator Kenna was 44 years of age, and was the youngest member of the senate. The term of Senator Faulkner, his colleague, expires March 4th, and the West Virginia legislature will thus elect two United States senators.

Commissioners Meet.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 11.—The board of railroad commissioners met today to resume the hearing of the Shively case, but owing to the absence of Manager Leeds, of the traffic association, who was wanted as a witness, the board transacted no business and adjourned until tomorrow.

Summarily Executed.

BRINGLEY, Ark., January 11.—Paul Scruggs and [illegible] Allen, who Saturday night [illegible], robbed and cremated Rube Atkinson and his housekeeper and daughter, near Cotton Plant, were taken from jail there by a mob last night, handcuffed and shot to death.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

A SESSION OF MINISTERS AT WASHINGTON

Making Strenuous Efforts to Close the World's Fair Gates on Sunday.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—The Sunday opening hearing was resumed today by the special committee of the house on the World's Columbian Exposition. Elliott F. Shepard addressed the committee in favor of the gates being kept closed on Sundays. Rev. Dr. Ramsdell of Washington, Rev. Dr. Joseph Cook of Boston, and others earnestly opposed the opening.

L. S. Caffin, ex-railway commissioner of Iowa and now president of the Sabbath Reform association, said the farmers of Iowa were against Sunday openings as was the Railway Trainmen's association and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

A committee of twenty-five or thirty, representing the American Sabbath union, and other organizations interested in preventing the repeal of the World's Fair Sunday closing law, called at the White House today. They were received by President Harrison in the east room and were introduced individually by Colonel Shepard, who made a formal address to the President, reciting the purpose for which the committee was laboring.

Rev. Ramsdell of Washington read a memorial addressed to the President, invoking his aid in securing the object sought.

To this President Harrison responded that it would be manifestly improper for him to discuss the matter in view of the fact that it is now before congress for action.

Still Clinging to Life.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—Dr. Johnston paid a good-night visit to Blaine shortly before 10 o'clock. On leaving the house he said to a reporter that Blaine passed an uneventful day and rested easily tonight.

At 3 a.m. there appeared to be no change in Blaine's condition. The house is in darkness, and no evidence of activity within is noticeable.

Frozen Oysters.

CHESTFIELD, M. D., January 11.—Chesapeake bay and all its tributaries are covered with from twelve to eighteen inches of ice and the oyster industry is at a standstill, and stock that is almost worthless brings from $150 to $175 per bushel. All packing houses are closed. The ice embargo is the heaviest for seventeen years. It is feared that many dredgers who were frozen in miles from shore perished in their frail boats.

Among the Floes.

HAMBURG, January 11.—Ten steamships were sighted off Cuxhaven today, as they drifted eastward in the midst of enormous ice floes. All had steam up but were apparently helpless. Only the German Tank steamship Ponla, Captain Minch, was recognized.

BILLY MATTHEWS HELD

For Assaulting a 16-year-old Girl.

THE STORY OF THE VICTIM

From The Republican's special correspondent.

PORTERVILLE, January 11.—The examination of Billy Matthews, the Australian prize fighter, alias William E. Smith, for outraging Miss Asmus of Porterville was held here before Judge Gilliam with closed doors.

A. M. Lumley of the Porterville Enterprise appeared for the defendant and Jo P. Carroll assisted in the prosecution.

Miss Amelia Asmus, the victim, is a small girl in short clothes, with dark flowing hair and an oldish face. She can neither read nor write and is very unsophisticated. She testified very reluctantly and her examination occupied two hours.

She said she did not know who her parents were or where she was born. She came to Porterville from an orphanage in St. Joseph but she did not know in what state St. Joseph was. About two months ago she arrived in Porterville and boarded at the Palace hotel. On the evening of December 7th there was a ball in town to which the people of the hotel went and left her alone.

About 8 o'clock on that evening Smith came into the parlor, and asked her out to take a walk. She declined, but on a second invitation she accepted. They walked around the suburbs for about an hour, and when they were passing through a field Matthews suddenly threw her down and accomplished his purpose. Matthews told her that if she ever informed on him he would repeat his act.

They then walked home again and he repeated the offense in the parlor and also two days afterwards. On redirect examination, the witness said that the reason she did not tell of what had happened was because she feared Matthews. Finally she resolved to tell Mrs. Nesbitt, who advised her to inform the girl's brother, and she did so.

Dr. W. A. Whitlock testified that he had made an examination of the girl, and found evidence that she had been tampered with.

Matthews, who is the picture of a prizefighter, testified that he was a native of Australia, and 24 years old. He had assumed the name of Smith as a professional. The last time he came to Porterville was on December 1st, and he became acquainted with Amelia two days later. He denied that he ever made free with her, or was ever out walking with her. On the night of December 7th he saw Amelia with the hotel porter. They looked into the defendant's class room, and the girl remarked: "You can't fight a little bit."

He was with Harry H. Davis on the whole of the evening of December 7th.

Harry H. Davis, clerk, testified that he and Matthews were together on the night of December 7th, from 7 until 10.30 in the evening. He never saw Matthews walking with the girl.

The court took the matter under advisement for two hours, and at the end of that time, held the prisoner to answer to the charge, with bonds fixed at $1500. Not being able to furnish bonds, the prisoner was remanded to the Visalia jail.

BITTER COLD.

The East and North in a Frigid Grip.

NEW YORK, January 11.—Flushing bay is frozen over out to East river for the first time in many years. A number of schooners are fast to floes upon the sound.

Reports from various points in the state show a temperature ranging from 2 below near this city to 32 below in Clinton county.

It was the coldest day in Central New Jersey for years, the thermometer falling to zero.

The Delaware river is frozen solid between Lambertville, N. J. and Newhope, Pa.

From Pennsylvania come reports of continued cold. Passenger trains of the Downing & Lancaster railroad stuck in a drift last night for several hours, and passengers suffered severely.

At Philadelphia, as far as the eye can see both up and down the Delaware river in front of the city, the river is packed with ice, and navigation, so far as seagoing coastwise vessels is concerned, is at a standstill.

Reports from New England tell of extreme cold.

At Winston, N. C., the thermometer registered zero today, being the coldest in fifteen years.

Rough on Passengers.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., January 11.—The worst storm for many years has been raging for twenty hours past in the mountains near Ebensburg. Last night passengers on the Branch train, which was snowed in near Ebensburg, were held all night in an open country, and suffered severed severely. The train was stalled through the careless work of a switchman who ran it on a siding where it stuck fast. The storm raged all night, and the thermometer was 12 below. It was trying times. Today the engineer, who was badly frozen, was removed to the nearest farm house, and is reported to be in a serious condition. The train was abandoned, and the passengers during the day were gotten to the main line.

Our Own Export.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—Secretary Foster of the state department has received the following cable dispatch from United States Consul Estes at Hamburg: "Three cases of cholera yesterday, five today. Of the eight five were on a Spanish steamer from New Orleans."

THE peculiarity about a French crisis is the frequency with which it can occur.

THE railroad rate cutters are slashing away sort o' reckless, all the same county divisi n ists.

MR. CLEVELAND manages the Democratic party of the United States all right, but as boss of the Democracy in New York he is a ponderous failure. A party by the name of Hill holds the whip hand in that state.

THE loaves and fishes are being handed out to the hungry gang at Sacramento with the same disregard for taxpayers that has marked former sessions. The leaven of reform is working very slowly in this commonwealth.

GOVERNOR PATTISON of Pennsylvania makes a violent attack on the big coal monopoly in his biennial message, but it doesn't count for much. In dealing with a monopoly like the coal trust actions in court speak louder than words in messages.

KERN county already has one English colony and expects to have another shortly, extensive enough to occupy 200,000 acres of her soil. In another year Editor Reuck will be wearing those cunning little side whiskers and plaid pants loud enough to be heard in the middle of the next county.

AN enthusiastic Oaklander says in the Times of that city that Billy Foote is a match for all the corporations of the state. William is a game biped, to be sure, but he is hardly equal to the emergency suggested. Mr. Foote once had a go at the Southern Pacific company, but it came out of the contest without defeat or noticeable humiliation.

IT is reported that the widow of Senator Hearst will build a monument to the memory of the late millionaire in the form of a home for indigent boys, which will be located on an estate of 460 acres near Pleasanton, Alameda county. In this home boys from 8 to 16 years of age may be educated, taught trades and fitted for the battle of life. The money of the dead millionaire could hardly be put to better use.

A REPORT is said to be current in Havana that certain English capitalists have consented to loan the Spanish government $300,000,000, to be paid from the Cuban custom receipts. The rumor is interesting, but it will not be believed without ample evidence that there are facts behind it. Spain is hard pressed for ready cash, but it does not seem probable that she could be induced to mortgage Cuba to Great Britain in the manner indicated, and it is certain that the United States would not consent either to an English protectorate or occupation of Cuba. It would be alike contrary to the Monroe doctrine and the law of self preservation to allow any one of the great naval powers of Europe to take possession of the rich island whose natural and rightful destiny is annexation to the United States.

DOUBTLESS Mr. Cleveland knew that he would stir up a hornet's nest by his declaration against Mr. Murphy. He is a man of singular confidence in himself, his influence and his success, and may possibly have believed that his declaration of hostility would put Mr. Murphy out of the race. But even in that case he can scarcely have supposed that the Hill-Croker combination would be pleased about it, or would fail to resent the blow at the earliest convenient opportunity. If the combination proves strong enough to elect a senator, which it evidently will in defiance of Mr. Cleveland's declaration, its power to make him trouble will be greatly increased. The next senate may possibly have a bare majority of Democrats with the casting vote of Vice President Stevenson, but in no case will the majority be so large that an appointmen by M. Cleveland can be ratified against the wishes of the Republicans, nor can a measure be passed in the senate unless the Democratic senators are agreed. If Senator Hill and possibly one or two other Democrats in that body see fit to make trouble for the next President, they will have a thousand opportunities. Add Mr. Murphy to Mr. Hill and the President will indeed find his path beset with difficulties and tribulation.

HERE in this city and vicinity we have been rubbing our hands together and stamping our feet and talking about cold weather, but in reality we do not know what cold weather is, as compared with the rest of the world north of the equator, says the San Francisco Post. There seems to be a universal cold wave traveling around the earth just now, but all we get of it is an occasional dash of spray. In New York there has been a perfect blizzard raging, accompanied by snowdrifts four or five feet deep. Traffic on Broadway has been almost completely suspended, and the streets have been deserted except by those whom necessity has compelled to be out of doors. In Halifax the cold and snow have been more noticeable than at any time in years before, and in New England there have been Atlantic gales and snowstorms all along the coast. Europe, too, has felt the effect of the same cold wave. All over the continent and in the United Kingdom the cold has been unusually severe, and with the cold have come wintry gales and storms of snow and sleet, until it has been almost impossible to carry on the ordinary out of door operations of trade and commerce. There are cycles, seemingly, of cold weather, but the laws which govern and determine their recurrence have never been ascertained. Weather science is of so recent a date that time enough has not elapsed to make extended comparisons. Had our ancestors paid as much attention to meteorological phenomena as we do, it might be possible now to predict a cold winter or a warm one with reasonable certainty; but as it is all we can do is to take the weather as it comes. We in California, however, have no right to complain of cold weather.

THE bill introduced by Congressman Outhwaite, providing for the "frequent redemption of all United States paper currency and national bank notes" that have become soiled and unclean in the course of use, again directs attention to the urgency of employing the utmost precaution against the cholera scourge next spring and summer. The new measure is the result of a careful investigation made by eminent bacteriologists. Few people, outside of those whose business it is to handle great quantities of money, realize the filthiness which paper currency often acquires. Not only are bills stowed away in greasy wallets and hidden in noisome corners, but they are kept and handled by all classes and conditions of men. One of the professional men employed to conduct the investigation in question reports that a one dollar bill he examined contained three kinds of bacteria, and that the culture made of the notes submitted to him showed that there were bacteria colonies on each one of them capable of invading the human system. A London journal, speaking of kindred examinations in England, declares that on two bank notes examined there 19,000 germs were found. In view of the extreme need of vigilance in guarding against the appearance of the dread Asiatic visitor during the coming months, the passage of the bill for the frequent redemption of paper money would seem to be a measure of prudence. The danger lurking in old currency will not, however, prevent THE REPUBLICAN from receiving it from delinquent subscribers. Bring along your old bacteria-infected bills. We will handle them with tongs and allow credit for every moth-eaten cent.

The Heart of England.

In the midst of the old city of London, where the heart of human life beats fastest, stands the church of St. Swithin's, an old edifice rebuilt by Wren upon its ancient foundations, but recently reduced by modern taste to a most commonplace air of comfort and newness.

If the curious traveler will step out of the passing throng and edge his way through the hucksters of flowers and stale fruit squatted around the church, he will find ... [illegible] ... of its foundation a large oblong stone as gray as the beard of Time himself.

This is London stone, erected by the Romans half a century before the birth of the Saviour as the central milestone or point of their positions in Britain. From it all roads, divisions of property and distances throughout the province were measured.

It has been recognized as the heart of England, from which all its articles flowed, "by every historian, dramatist or antiquary known to English literature."

A feeling has always existed among Englishmen about this stone which was not altogether superstition, that, as all distances were reckoned from it, so it was in a certain way the base of the stability of England.—Youth's Companion.

Gallery Audiences.

"Gallery audiences," said a veteran attache of one of Philadelphia's theaters recently, "are made up of some of the most intelligent playgoers in the city. Young men of moderate incomes prevail, but often wealthy youths go among the gods, as their elevated station affords in many respects the most advantageous place from which to view the stage. The receipts from the gallery, moreover, are a very important item, and the people in it do good work in leading the applause. Edwin Booth always begins an after the play speech by gazing up at the gallery in recognition of its enthusiasm in greeting him.

"Lawrence Barrett was always popular with the gods in Philadelphia, and he used to say their applause was as a refreshing drink to him. For the most part the gallery audiences were well behaved, critical and intelligent, and for myself I should feel sorry to see them relegated, in this city anyhow, to the 'pit,' as the English call the parquet."—Philadelphia Press.

Order of Adjudication of Insolvency.

W. C. Morrer having filed in this court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, from which it appears that he is an insolvent debtor, the said W. C. Morrer is hereby declared to be insolvent. It is hereby ordered that Jay Scott, sheriff of Fresno county, be and he is hereby appointed receiver of the property of said insolvent, and that upon his giving a bond to the people of the State of California, conditioned as required by law and in such sum as the court may order, and qualifying, he take charge and possession of all of the estate, real and personal, of said W. C. Morrer, insolvent debtor, whatsoever and wheresoever situate, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep and care for and dispose of the same until the appointment of an assignee of his estate. All persons having the same or any part thereof (including the sheriff of the said county of Fresno) in his or their possession, are hereby directed to deliver said property to said receiver, and all persons owing money to said insolvent are hereby directed to pay the same to said receiver, and that said receiver keep the said property, or the proceeds thereof, till the further order of this court. And all persons are hereby forbidden to pay any debts to said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to such insolvent, to him or to any person, firm, corporation or association for his use, and the said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Hon. S. A. Holmes, Judge of the Superior Court of the said county of Fresno, in open court, at the courtroom of said court in the said county of Fresno, on the 4th day of February, 1893, at 9 o'clock a.m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered that this order be published in the Fresno Morning Republican, a daily newspaper of general circulation published in the said county of Fresno, as often as the said paper is published before the day set for the meeting of creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime all proceedings against said insolvent be stayed.

Dated January 4, A.D. 1893.

A CITIZENS MEETING

To Formulate a Protest Against County Division.

A meeting of citizens of Fresno and vicinity will be held at Iroquois hall tonight at 7.30 o'clock, to publicly protest against the division of the county proposed by residents north of the San Joaquin, and to ask the representatives of this county in the legislature to use their influence to defeat the bill which has been introduced by Assemblyman Mordecai. It is argued by those who are actively opposing the measure that division will be very injurious to this city and that the benefits to the residents of the new county will be slight and the numbers benefitted very few. The attendance at the meeting of all who are interested is earnestly requested.

Sea Gulls in Court House Cupola.

Philanthrophists have at last decided to foster the tamale industry. Redden, of Redden & Collins, wood and coal dealers, is the leader in this movement, and claims the price of tamales is beyond the reach of the starving poor, so he has leased the upper part of the court house cupola of W. Parker Lyon, the Furniture King, and intends raising National sea gulls for his tamale factory that he intends running in connection with his wood yard. Lyon claims the honey industry isn't what it should be, so he will put 6,000,000 swarms of bees in the lower portion of the cupola that he has reserved, and both Redden and he are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the bees and sea gulls, for the National sea gull has the reputation of trying to eat everything in sight, and Redden says he don't care as such food only warms the tamales. MRS. GRADY'S STORY

Of Her Husband's Extreme Cruelty.

HER LIFE OFTEN THREATENED

The Ratto Incident Explained in Detail—Was It a Plot?

Mrs. Cora E. Grady, the plaintiff in the Grady divorce case, was on the stand all day yesterday. She told a heart-rending story of cruel treatment. On cross-examination the circumstances of the encounter between her husband, the defendant, and her alleged lover, C. Ratto, were given. They differ entirely from the account given by the defendant. The plaintiff's case is based altogether on the alleged cruel and inhuman conduct of the defendant.

GRADY'S FINGER MARKS.

Attorney W. R. Jacobs conducted the examination of the witness. She began by stating that on November 10, 1892, Grady became angry with her and cursed and swore at her. He said she was nothing but a street walker and called her other vile names. He then grasped her violently by the arm and after shaking her threatened to kill her. Next day, at dinner, she bared her arm and showed him some discolorations, which she told him had been caused by his fingers. Grady answered, "That's what you deserve." Ratto, who boarded with the Grady's was present and heard the conversation. On November 18th Grady quarreled with her again, applied vile epithets to her and slapped her in the face, leaving his finger marks. He accused her of criminal intimacy with a certain man, and said her children were illegitimate and that he was supporting another man's children.

RATTO ORDERED TO LEAVE.

On November 24th Grady came to the house, about 11 o'clock in the morning, and ordered Ratto, their boarder, to leave. He accused Ratto of receiving money from the person he supposed to be intimate with his wife and giving it to the latter—that is, charged Ratto with being a go-between. Ratto said he had paid Mrs. Grady for his lodging and board a month in advance a few days before and if Mrs. Grady would return the money he would leave. Mrs. Grady stated she had spent part of the money and could not pay it back. Ratto would either have to board it out, or sue her to recover it. Grady then said he would get the money and pay Ratto. He went down town and returned later on with two men whom he wished to witness the payment of the money. Grady offered it to Ratto, who seemed to think Mrs. Grady ought to be the person to pay him the money.

MRS. GRADY'S LUCKY FINGER.

A hot quarrel then ensued over the delicate point as to whether Ratto should receive the money from Grady or his wife. Grady started to put Ratto's trunk and effects out of the house, and Ratto interfered. The two men came to blows, and Grady drew a pistol. While they were struggling Mrs. Grady drew near and asked her husband not to shoot. She told him to put up his weapon, as Ratto was unarmed. Grady thereupon turned around, and, with an oath, pointed the pistol at her, swearing he would kill her. She grabbed the pistol as he pulled the trigger, and the hammer came down on her finger, preventing the discharge of the weapon.

HER LIFE ATTEMPTED AGAIN.

On December 15, 1892, continued the witness, Grady came home and asked her to dismiss her suit for divorce. She answered that his cruel conduct had forced her into the courts and she would not dismiss the case. Upon this Grady swore at her and vowed he would never pay her alimony or attorney's fees. He then bestowed a few more opprobrious epithets upon her and drew his trusty revolver. Mrs. Grady ran out of the kitchen door around the house, her husband following. She then ran back into the dining room and shut the door behind her, locking it. Grady, in order to effect an entrance, broke the lock. Just then the baker, who delivered their bread, drove up and Grady discontinued his pursuit. The baker came into the kitchen, where he found Mrs. Grady crying. The broken lock was offered and received in evidence.

SACRED TOKENS DESTROYED.

On another occasion, between December 15th and 20, 1892, Grady started another quarrel. A handsome picture, portraying Mr. Grady's classic lineaments, graced the wall. In his rage he tore it down and smashed it to smithereens, saying that no —— prostitute should have his picture. He also wore a pretty chain made of his wife's hair and connected with gold links. He jerked the chain off, carefully removed the links and tore the chain. After applying the usual epithets to her he said he would not wear the hair of a —— bawd and threw the piece at Mrs. Grady. Some of them fell on the stove and were somewhat burnt. Portions of the chain were introduced as evidence.

THREW SLOPS ON HER.

The witness here went back to the spring of 1892. One day she and Grady were getting ready to go down town. She had washed her hands and face and dressed. Grady was lying down at the time. After his wife was ready Grady arose and asked her to wash his neck. She asked, "Grady, can't you wash your own neck? My sleeves are tight and I'll spatter my dress with the water." Grady answered, "—— you, I'll spatter your dress;" and he did, for he picked up the basin of dirty water and threw it all over her. She took off her dress and gave it to their servant girl, telling her to hang it on the line to dry. Mrs. Grady then sat down and cried. This circumstance was testified to by the girl yesterday. About the same date they had another quarrel and Grady picked up one of his heavy shoes and threw it at her, striking her in the small of the back. On November 1, 1892, a young man named Retz, who had formerly boarded with them, came to the house and showed Mrs. Grady a letter from his sister, with whom she had spent part of last summer. As Mrs. Grady was returning the letter, Grady came up. He used some very insulting language, and she decided to leave the room in order not to hear it, taking a pitcher containing milk with her. Grady, perceiving her intention, stood before the door to prevent her going out. She asked him to stand aside, and upon his refusing, threatened to throw the milk at him. Grady caught hold of her, took the pitcher from her and poured the milk on her. Another act of violence was committed by Grady on election day, when he threw a piece of stovewood at her. He also kicked her on the thigh once while she was sitting on a lounge; in fact, had during the past four years committed innumerable acts of cruelty.

THE BORGIAN WAY.

At this point an interesting bit of testimony was elicited. The witness stated that Grady had once threatened to poison her. He told her he would invite some friends to the house and offer them refreshments. He would put poison in the food and nobody would know whether he or some of the guests had done it. The witness testified that quarrels were very frequent. Grady did not seem to wish her to make friends with other women, and frequently accused her of intimacy with other men and of running with fast women. He also stated a number of times that he was not the father of her children.

During the direct examination Attorney Grady arose and stated that the defense made no contention now, and would not attempt to prove that any criminal intimacy or impropriety whatever had ever taken place between the plaintiff and the person before mentioned; that said person's relations with Mrs. Grady were merely of a friendly character. Mrs. Grady was much affected at times while testifying and finally broke down, crying bitterly. The cross examination on the question of cruelty was very rigorous, but she stood it well.

A COMPROMISE SUGGESTED.

Some questions put to Mrs. Grady on cross-examination elicited the fact that a compromise had been suggested by the defendant, and others led to the telling of the encounter between Grady and Ratto at the Grady home. It will be remembered that the defendant claimed at the time that he found Ratto clad only in his underclothes in Mrs. Grady's room, and that Ratto, upon being discovered, had fired several shots at Grady. Mrs. Grady's version of the affair differs greatly from her husband, and is, besides, somewhat more interesting.

A MACHIAVILIAN PLOT.

On December 20, testified Mrs. Grady, Mr. Grady came to the house and told her he wanted the case settled. She, Grady and their little daughter were sitting at the supper table. He said he would agree to a certain arrangement concerning the property, but that she must first induce Ratto to dismiss the case of assault with a deadly weapon against him, Grady. Mrs. Grady asked him how she was to see Ratto, he having left the house, and her husband suggested that she send their own Willie to Ratto and ask him to come up that evening. "I'm tired of this business," added Grady, "and want it settled. If it isn't settled soon I'll lose my position on the force."

Mrs. Grady consented to send for Ratto. Willie went for the young man about 8 o'clock and he came shortly after 9. Mrs. Grady told Ratto to take off his overcoat and asked if he had seen Willie, to which Ratto answered he had. She then told him that Grady wanted to settle the case and desired him to have the charge against Grady dismissed. Ratto asked what Grady's proposition was, and upon being told refused to dismiss the case. They were talking about the matter when Grady rapped at the door. They were sitting in the dining room, and John Grady, the defendant's brother, was in the house, having been let in a few minutes before.

When Grady entered the room he said to Ratto, "You ———, I've got you!" Mrs. Grady said, "Why, you told me to send for him," to which Ratto added, "Yes, she sent for me."

TAKE OFF YOUR CLOTHES.

Grady then drew his pistol and addressing Ratto, said:

"You ———, take off your clothes and do it — quick."

Ratto answered forcibly, "I be — if I do!"

"I'll kill you if you don't, and do it quick," warned Grady.

Mrs. Grady here advised Ratto to do as Grady told him as her husband was mean enough to kill him. Ratto began to take off his coat and vest, and while doing so Grady cried, "Take off your shoes and pants, you ———, I have got you where I want you; I'll get my property now."

After Ratto had disrobed, Grady ordered him to pick up his duds and enter Mrs. Grady's bed room. Ratto picked up his clothes and stepped to one side to get his overcoat. He then walked towards Mrs. Grady's room, Grady a short distance behind him with pistol drawn.

GRADY OPENS FIRE.

As Ratto entered the bedroom, continued the witness, Grady called for his brother to come to him. Ratto made a run, slamming the door behind him, dropping all his clothes with the exception of the overcoat, on the bedroom floor. Grady ran after him, dashed the door open and fired a shot at Ratto, who was standing by a closet in the southwest corner of the room and near the window. Grady shot again and Ratto returned fire, shooting two or three times.

After the shooting John Grady came running in. Ratto dropped his pistol and surrendered. The defendant started to handcuff Ratto, when John Grady suggested that Ratto be allowed to dress himself, it being cold. Ratto dressed, and was handcuffed. As Grady, the defendant, went to the door, Officers Welch and Smith came up, and Ratto was taken away.

The witness said she had told the circumstances of what occurred early next morning to P. Le Blanc, just as she told the story on the stand. She also stated that on the morning after the affair her daughter had asked her why papa made Ratto undress the night before. Witness testified in conclusion that nothing of an improper or criminal character had ever passed between her and Ratto.

The court then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

HOSPITAL STEWARD.

The Place Declared Vacant and Robert Rader Will Fill It.

The supervisors yesterday appointed Policeman Robert L. Rader as hospital steward in place of William G. Summers, removed. The salary was reduced from $75 per month to $60, with board, lodging, washing and experience thrown in.

Mr. Rader has been studying medicine for about a year. His position in the hospital will afford him an excellent opportunity of pursuing his studies. He will be away from the madding crowd and will be afforded ample opportunity of investigating the rise and fall of disease's empire.

Coon Crutcher has been appointed by City Marshal Morgan as daywatchman at police headquarters in Mr. Rader's place.

WAYWARD GRACIE

Did Not Like to be Twitted About Her Parents

IN THE SALVATION ARMY

They Cannot Control Her and They Have Procured Her Arrest.

Gracie Dorman, who declares that she is 17 years old while her parents say she is only 16, will go to the bad altogether if she is not taken care of.

Her father and mother are prominent members of the Salvation Army in this city, and the girl instead of profiting by their teaching is evidently ashamed of them.

About a week ago Policeman Patterson, who was at the depot waiting the arrival of the southbound midnight train was called upon by the girl's father. He said that he believed his daughter was about to leave town on the train with a man called Scotty, the railroad messenger of the Transfer company, and he wanted Mr. Patterson to arrest her.

When Mr. Patterson was told that Gracie was only 16 he informed her father that, she being a minor, her father had a right to take possession of her himself.

The train came and went, but the girl did not appear, and nothing further was heard of the matter until yesterday morning, after Mr. Patterson had reported off watch. Mr. Dorman requested him to arrest the girl, because neither he nor Mrs. Dorman could exercise any control over her.

They found the girl standing with her mother in front of the Old Palm Garden, on I street. The parents insisted on the girl being taken to jail and promised to swear to a complaint against her for the purpose of having her committed to some reformatory institution. The girl herself requested the policeman to arrest her. She said that her parents had made home a hell on earth for her.

On the way to the jail Gracie told the policeman that she had been running around with two or three men. She was dissatisfied with her parents because they had made home disagreeable for her, and she was tired "of being joshed by everybody because my father and mother belonged to the Salvation army."

She said also that on the night on which her father and Mr. Patterson were looking for her at the railway depot she was not with Scotty, but was out walking with another fellow.

An effort will be made to have her committed to some reformatory institution.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL BONDS.

The School Trustees Proceeding Slowly to Get Them.

The city board of education held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of George E. Church. The committee on supplies was authorized to buy slate blackboards as a part of the necessary repairs on the K Street high school.

A discussion was had as to the advisability of calling a special election for the issuance of bonds to build a new high school and one ward school. It was agreed that $75,000 would be needed for that purpose, but a difference of opinion arose over the old point at issue—whether that part of the district outside the city limits could be taxed by the city trustees to pay the principal and interest on the bonds.

All the members of the board were agreed that the city trustees had such power, but Secretary Austin was of the opinion that only the supervisors had authority to levy a tax on that part of the district lying outside of the city boundaries.

In order to settle the difference of opinion on this point a special committee was appointed to investigate the legal phase of the matter and to report at the next meeting.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

William Stephenson of Watts Valley Buried Yesterday.

William Stephenson of Watts valley, one of the oldest and best known citizens of this county, died last Tuesday at his home and was buried yesterday at the Academy on Dry creek.

The deceased was a native of Tennessee, 60 years old. He arrived in California when but 18 years old and engaged in the cattle business on Kings river and on Fancher creek.

He recently married a very young woman, and they did not agree well enough to keep out of the divorce courts. He refused to pay alimony and was committed to jail for contempt, but afterwards agreed to obey the order of the court and was accordingly released.

THE BAGGED HIGHBINDERS.

Twelve Were Taken Before the Courts Yesterday.

Five Chinamen charged with visiting a place resorted to for the purpose of smoking opium and two highbinders charged with vagrancy were taken before Recorder Laning yesterday. The vagrants pleaded not guilty, and the opium resorters, not having money enough to pay their fines, were sent back to jail.

Another five opium den visitors were taken before Justice of the Peace Austin. Three were fined $7.50 each and two $5.60 each. They paid their fines. The prisoners were captured in Chinatown on the evening before in the police raid.

She Might Become a Star.

The Fresno girl named Chloe Bradway, who created so much talk last year by her efforts to rival Cleopatra, is again in the field. After three previous elopements with boys and young men she has now left home with a married man. The girl is said to be a model of the Greek type of beauty. Here is a chance for some theatrical manager to secure a variety star. If Chloe can charm the dudes who haunt the theaters as she charms the rural Strephons she would be a valuable addition to any dramatic troupe.—San Francisco Chronicle.

TULARE ENTERPRISE.

A Broom Factory Working Up Home Grown Raw Material.

It may not be generally known that Tulare has a broom factory in operation, says the Tulare Register. Our city is progressing so steadily and quietly and the planting of this industry in our midst has been done with so little noise that few are aware of its existence. The factory is located on South F street and is turning out an excellent quality of brooms. It is owned and operated by two practical broom makers—Messrs. Stewart and Wilson. We were shown samples of the brooms made in the Tulare factory and unless our judgment fail us the article is as finely finished as can be turned out in any factory in the land. One feature of this home industry that will appeal to all Tulareans is the fact that the broom straw is not imported, but is a product of our own rich soil, being raised in our immediate vicinity. Tulare dealers should examine these brooms. They will compare favorably with the imported goods and can be retailed some cheaper. We have been crying for a factory and since we have one in our midst let us stand by it, showing that we are in earnest about encouraging home industry. If we fail to be loyal to a small, but worthy, concern, we may be less loyal to one of more gigantic proportions. Dust your floors with a Tulare broom.

CLEVERLY CAPTURED

One of the Buggy Thieves Caught Last Night.

BY SHADOWING A SUSPECT

It was a piece of work at once neat and artistic.

For several weeks past this city has been infested with one or more sneak thieves, whose specialty is the stealing of whips, buggy robes, and horses and buggies.

The operators got out of the way so quickly that they escaped detection. It is a very simple matter to unhitch a horse and buggy when the owner is out of the way and drive off with the rig to some dark and secluded place where the harness and robes could be easily abstracted and the horse turned loose.

Policeman Babcock has had his eye on a man named James F. Bullaney, who has been loitering about the saloons at all hours of the day and night and whose means of support could not be made visible even with a microscope. Mr. Babcock would have arrested him for vagrancy several days ago, but he thought that the interests of justice would be better served by shadowing the suspicious character.

He caught sight of Bullaney at 9.30 o'clock last night and followed him about the streets unobserved. At 10 o'clock Bullaney turned the corner of Tulare street into J and coolly took his seat in a one-horse buggy standing in front of the Bodega saloon.

"Hello Jim!" greeted Mr. Babcock cheerily, "Where are you going?"

"O" replied the unabashed crook, "I was just going around to Fahey's and go to bed."

The policeman knew that the crook was not a guest at Fahey's hotel, but spent the nights on foot or in saloon chairs and he asked:

"What are you going to do with the rig?"

"I'll put in the Electioneer stables."

"Hadn't you better take the blanket off the horse first?"

Yes. Mr. Bullaney thought that would be a good idea and he did so. Then Mr. Babcock thought it would be a good idea to ask Bullaney if he was the owner of the rig.

No. But the owner was in the Bodega saloon, and he had given Mr. Bullaney permission to use the horse and buggy.

Mr. Babcock assisted Mr. Bullaney out of the buggy and took him into the saloon.

"There's the owner," said the crook, pointing to a group of men standing in front of the bar.

But the man indignantly denied that he owned the rig, and Mr. Babcock took his seat in the buggy with Mr. Bullaney.

"I'll tell you where we can make $100 on the rig," said the crook confidentially poking Mr. Babcock in the liver with his finger. "I can soak this rig for $100 and we'll divy."

Mr. Babcock took his man to jail. When the prisoner was searched it was found that he wore three pairs of pants at one and the same time. In the pockets were found thirty poker chips and two brass baggage checks for trunks at the railway depot. He admitted that he had stolen the poker chips from Doble's saloon early in the evening. He was very abusive in jail, and has the manner of a hardened criminal.

FANNY'S FUN.

Candid Catarina Admires Her Wardrobe and Specialties.

The house was but fair that welcomed Miss Rice at the Barton last evening; but it was plainly appreciative. Rather surprising, too, for Fresno enjoys fun, and the "Jolly Surprise" is full of it.

The pretty, graceful pictures that preceded Miss Rice's appearance spoke not fulsomely of it; for she is all and more than they represent. Her dresses are stylish and becoming, richly toned in color, and of artistic cut. Her acting—well there is not much of it—she appears so natural—in the role of Violet Grey; but her specialties are decidedly novel.

It was a marvel to me how she could appear in the shape designated by the Costermonger's dress—large head and pygmy extremities—but the cabinet made all plain and extremely amusing. Her makeup as the Little Girl Afraid of the Robber was specially applauded, and when at the end she stepped out of the cabinet with her hair slightly ruffled, her eyes aglare with fun, in the shimmer of her golden robes, she made a picture to be remembered.

Charles Bradshaw, as David Bradbar, tied to the apron strings was a most pittiable object, and deserved all the hard knocks bestowed on him. His scene with Hustler, where they empty a small bottle, and the after effects are extremely ludicrous, and as far as imagination goes he makes a fair hit of aping the inebriate. It was well advised, however, his mentioning a former bumper, as in these days such a sized bottle would scarcely do the work he performed.

Melville Stuart is the handsome man of the company, and like most of that kind does little else to impress one. That however goes a very long way.

Miss Eva Randolph does the mother-in-law of Bill Nye to perfection. Poor girl, it is a hard cast to fill, so unreal. The songs which gave most pleasure were those sung by Miss Rice to her own accompaniment, "It Takes a Girl to Get There Every Time," and "Maria." She showed her skill as a pianist as well. It was a mistake to place two pictures just alike on easels facing the audience, or, perhaps, I saw double owing to the effect of the fizz on poor Bradbar.

Miss Rice will certainly draw a crowded house when next she visits us.

CANDID CATARINA.

"Purity, Strength, Perfection."

CLEVELAND'S

One rounded teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder does more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of any other. A large saving on a year's bakings.

BAKING POWDER

A pure cream of tartar powder.

Cleveland's is the standard, it never varies, it does the most work, the best work and is perfectly wholesome.

SHE USED COAL OIL

AND IS NOW VERY SORRY FOR IT.

A Life Saved by Rare Presence of Mind and a Big Blanket.

The danger of using coal oil in lighting fires has often been exploited, but some people have to be hit on the head with a hammer before an idea will make an impression, says the Stockton Republican.

Miss Leta Ramsey, late of Selma, but now a compositor in one of the printing offices in this city, met with an accident yesterday that will doubtless be a warning to her for all time. She lives with Mrs. Smith on San Joaquin street, near Mormon avenue, and was taking a day off yesterday. In the dining room of the Smith residence is a stove, and, for that day, at least, it acted as contrary as ever a stove could. Every one in the house had tried making a fire in it, but it simply would not burn.

Miss Ramsey finally attempted it, but with as little success. With a determination worthy of a better cause, the lady persevered, and finally resorted to the dangerous contents of the kerosene can. The kindling was nicely laid, and all was ready. Miss Ramsey struck a match on the sole of her shoe and bent down to ignite the paper.

But that rebellious stove! It seemed just as if it knew the fire had to burn this time. The flame from the match crawled up against the grate, there was a flash and the flames, instead of going up the chimney, shot out of the lower door. Instantly the girl was afire. Flames curled up from her hair, and the beauty of her fluffy "bang" was gone for many moons to come. Mrs. Smith, who was standing by, seized a blanket and wrapped it about the girl's head, extinguishing the flames, but not before some of them had been inhaled.

A very sore throat and chest is the most serious result, though of course the loss of eyebrows and lashes and that pretty "bang," counts for nothing with their owner. As it is, her escape was a narrow one, and it is probable that, in future, she will not monkey around the hand wagon for fear the drum will fall on her.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Peck's Bad Boy" Better Than He Was.

Messrs. Griffin & Wilson are serving the public this season with the best presentation of Governor Peck's bad boy in dramatic form that has ever come before the public. The comedy has been greatly improved in form, a new second act entire has been written, a new character (Mrs. Duffy, the policeman's spouse) has been introduced, and of course, the piece abounds in new and original specialties, introduced by individual members of a very strong vaudeville company. Miss Carrie Tutein, the Bad Boy's girl, is heard in a round of song that has made her famous. Messrs. Barry and Bannon are seen as Irish comedians in songs and dances remarkable for their original and intrinsic merit. Wallie Clarke, as the Boy, is the spirit and animus of all, never letting the tide of fun ebb until the fall of the last curtain.

It will be presented at the Barton next Sunday evening.

The Vincent Case.

Attorney W. D. Tupper had a talk with the supervisors yesterday concerning the Vincent case. It was decided that instead of going east to look after the case in person before the supreme court, Mr. Tupper should prepare the necessary briefs and send them on. Mr. Tupper was allowed $200 for his services. Being thoroughly conversant with the case, having prosecuted Vincent and secured his conviction, the choice of Mr. Tupper to look after the matter was an excellent one.

Jean La Coste Insane.

Jean La Coste, the Frenchman who was arrested early Tuesday morning on a charge of insanity, had his examination yesterday morning before Judge Holmes. The examining physicians were Drs. W. T. Maupin and Lewis Leach. La Coste is 67 years old and has lived in Fresno nine years. He worked at the Barton vineyard eight years, leaving off last week. He has been in an asylum before. La Coste was adjudged insane, and Deputy Sheriff Timmons took him to Stockton on the noon train.

The World's Fair.

The Ladies' World's Fair association will hold an important meeting in the parlors of the Hughes hotel at 1 o'clock this afternoon to decide upon some artistic features of the Fresno county exhibit at the Columbian Exposition. A full attendance is expected.

Gritty Kansans.

TOPEKA, January 11.—The rival house of the legislature remained in session all night. At 1 o'clock this morning the rival speakers agreed that no further move would be made during the night, and they lay down to sleep under the same blanket. The members slept in chairs and on the floor.

The Republicans sent a petition to the governor, signed by sixty-four members, two more than a majority, asking him to recognize them as a legal body. The governor declined to say what action he would take.

Both houses were called to order this morning by the respective speakers, but the governor refused to recognize either. The senate appointed a committee to get legal advice as to which house is legal.

At a conference of both parties with the governor it was decided to appoint a committee of five to formulate a plan of settlement, and both houses adjourned until tomorrow.

A Fatal Slide.

SPOKANE, January 11.—A terrific snow slide swept down the mountain side last Wednesday in Kaslo, Slocan district, killing two men—Martin Flaherty and James Switzer—and ruining considerable property. The Freddie Lee mine, where the men were working, was almost in its path and they were caught in the avalanche. Their bodies are in a gulch below the mine covered with 150 feet of snow. It will be impossible to recover the bodies before spring.

Will Not Fight.

NEW YORK, January 11.—A special dispatch from Boston says it was settled today that there will be no match between Jack McAuliffe and the Englishman, Burge. McAuliffe wished to fight at 133 pounds, the limit light weight, and Burge finally admitted that he could not get below 135 pounds and retain the strength what he wanted. He said he was to fight at catch weight.

Cold as Blixin.

PITTSBURG, January 11.—Last week was the coldest for six years, the thermometer registering from 6 to 8 below. Rivers are frozen solid from bank to bank, and many schools have been forced to close on account of a shortage of natural gas.

Had Enough.

SACRAMENTO, January 11.—W. A. Brown, registrar of voters of San Francisco, has tendered his resignation to Governor Markham, to take effect February 15th.

TWO PATIENTS IN A DISPENSARY.

Late one evening a man was seated in the receiving room of one of the dispensaries in the lower part of the city. He was talking to a young surgeon who had charge of the room, and the conversation turned to the subject of the courage shown by young folks as compared with that of adults.

"It's all bosh," said the visitor, "about a child standing pain better than a man. Why, it stands to reason"—

"Hullo!" says the surgeon. "What's this?"

"It's me."

The visitor turned and saw two barefooted urchins, one about eight, and the other perhaps a year younger. The elder came in carrying his companion, whom he carefully laid on the lounge. Then he raised himself and said:

"Me and Dannie 're newsboys, and just now he stepped on a busted bottle in de park and cut his foot."

"And you carried him all the way from the park here on your back?"

"Yep."

The doctor had washed the blood from the foot and disclosed a deep, ragged cut about three inches long. He carefully washed and dressed it and was about to thread his needle to take a few needed stitches when the patient spoke up for the first time:

"Are you goin to sew it, doc?"

"Yes, my little man. It can't heal without it."

"Oh-h-h-h!"

He lay back, and after one suppressed groan the tears which trickled down his cheeks alone told the story of the pain. The sole of the foot of an ordinary New York newsboy is not a very easy thing for even the sharpest needle to pierce, and the pain of the operation was much increased. While it was going on a member of the New York fire patrol entered and sitting himself in a chair waited with evident impatience for his turn to arrive. The sewing finished, the foot was bandaged, and the young Styrax took up his burden.

"How far have you to go?" asked the doctor.

"Over to Oliver street."

It was a full half mile to Oliver street, but the youth took up his burden cheerfully.

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?" said the surgeon to the man.

The patrolman was a magnificent specimen of physical manhood, tall, broad and muscular.

"Well, you see, I was hitching up the hosses, and they started and threw me down. I fell on my hand there," he added as he held out the member. It was considerably swollen. To find the cause of the swelling the doctor began to run his fingers along the injured part, but he had hardly begun when his wrist was seized in a grip like iron.

"Hold on there, don't that hurt?"

"Of course it does, but I have to find out what's the matter."

Again he tried, and again he was prevented.

"How do you think I can fix your hand when you won't let me find out what's the matter with it?"

"I know that, but I can't stand it," he began.

"Hold his arm, a couple of you," said the surgeon to the attendants, who had come in, attracted by the noise. The man's arm was held, and it was found that the hand had been merely sprained.—New York Tribune.

The King and the Seidlitz Powder.

On the first consignment of seidlitz powders to the capital of Delhi the monarch was deeply interested in the accounts of the refreshing box. A box was brought to the king in full court, and the interpreter explained to his majesty how it should be used. Into a goblet he put the twelve blue papers, and having added water, the king drank it off. This was the alkali, and the royal countenance expressed no sign of satisfaction. It was then explained that in the combination of the two powders lay the luxury, and the twelve white powders were quickly dissolved in water, and as eagerly swallowed by his majesty.

With a shriek that will be remembered while Delhi is numbered with the kingdoms the monarch rose, stared, exploded and in his fall agonies screamed "Hold me down," then rushing from the throne fell prostrate on the floor. There he lay during the long continued effervescence of the compound, spurting like 10,000 pennyworths of imperial pop, and believing himself in the agonies of death, a melancholy and humiliating proof that kings are mortal.—Indian Mirror.

The Dewey System.

The Dewey system of cataloguing a library was devised by Mr. Melvil Dewey, at present director of the state library. In it all books are classified into a certain number of principal subjects, which, in alphabetical order, receive numbers; for instance, astronomy may be 1. Then the subjects are divided, and each division receives a decimal; for example, history may be 1; thus the history of astronomy is numbered 1.1. The divisions are further subdivided, and each subdivision receives a number expressing hundredths. Books on the history of astronomy in America might be 1.12.

After these come, when necessary, further subdivisions still, and then, in practice, come the shelf marks, which show where the book is to be found. The system, theoretically, is perfect; practically it is cumbrous, and, except to the cataloguer, unsatisfactory. Adapted in various ways, it is used in many libraries, however.—New York Sun.

A WHITE WOODCHUCK

BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF AN EXTREMELY INTERESTING PET.

A Wild Little Creature That Became Domesticated by Kindness—His Long Periods of Sleep and How He Looked During Them—His Awakening.

Some years ago in the spring, while traveling on the Belfast Branch railroad, just before arriving at Brook Station, I chanced to be looking out of the car window and saw a curious looking animal run under a pile of brush in a gravel pit near the track. I concluded at once that it must be an albino woodchuck, as my husband had told me one had been seen in that vicinity. At the station I hastily procured a basket, and securing the assistance of two boys I proceeded without loss of time to the gravel pit, and overhauling some of the brush soon found the prize. As I had conjectured, it was an albino woodchuck about two-thirds grown, pure white, with pink eyes, and as saucy a little fellow as one would care to handle. Without much difficulty I dropped my basket over him, and securing him returned to the station, boxed him up and expressed him home to my husband, with instructions to keep him on a milk diet until my return a week later.

On returning home I found my pet ensconced in a nest of cotton, purring away like a contented kitten. He seemed quite reconciled to the restraints of captivity, had already become so tame as to allow his beautiful snow white coat to be stroked, and seemed especially to enjoy gentle stroking about the face, which I think is a characteristic of most wild animals, and one of the ways of establishing confidential relations with them. For the first year his food consisted principally of bread and milk, with an occasional handful of plantain leaves. A most interesting sight was to watch him while being fed. He would sit up like a squirrel, holding his food in his paws. He soon learned to take his milk from a spoon. Grasping it near the bowl, he would hold it very gracefully until the milk was all lapped out; then, with a little assistance, would return it to the cup to be filled, and repeat the operation until his appetite was satisfied. Then he would go into his nest, roll himself up like a kitten and take a nap of several hours. With one exception he never showed his wild, savage nature during the two years of his life in confinement.

Early in the fall the disposition to hibernate began to show itself by his lack of activity, and he remained in his nest most of the time, his sleep becoming so profound that he could be taken from the nest without awaking. About Nov. 1 his sleep for the winter began. He was placed in the cellar, where the temperature was very even—just above the freezing point—and here he remained without being disturbed until the middle of March.

During all this time his body remained cold, and to all outward appearances lifeless. About the time of his awakening in March, upon visiting him and placing my hand on his body, I found it to be quite warm, and after rubbing him for a few moments he began to yawn and stretch, but did not get upon his feet. The next day I took him into a warm room in order to watch the process of awakening, rubbing his body and legs for an hour or more. He seemed quite indifferent to my solicitude on his behalf, but gradually awakened, opened his eyes, chattered his teeth, and gave that peculiar whicker so characteristic of a disturbed woodchuck.

His efforts to stand upon his feet were for some hours ineffectual. He seemed to have lost the use of them. Toward night, however, he seemed to regain full control of all his faculties and partook of a little milk. I was surprised to notice but little loss of fat during the long period of sleep. He had become excessively fat before going into his winter sleep, and I expected that would be absorbed during that period. His fur had become long and of a beautiful silvery gloss—so white and silky that it was a pleasure to stroke and pet him.

Upon his first awakening and for a day or two he seemed to have forgotten his friends and manifested his wild nature so much as to make himself very disagreeable. He ate with a voracious appetite and began to grow thin. In a few days he became a mere skeleton of his former self, and for several weeks—until June 1—did not begin to take on flesh. He now displayed more activity than at any other time during the year.

The following winter his sleep was interrupted once in two weeks. This was done by wrapping him in warm flannels and placing him in a warm room. He partook of but little food, and during the period of two days of broken rest he seemed very uneasy. About the last of March, when he should have awakened to activity, he was taken sick and died in convulsions after a sickness of two days. I now have him nicely mounted in my collection, among which are several albinos, but none so perfect as my beautiful pet.—Cor. Forest and Stream.

A Pair of Misers.

Mr. and Miss Dancer are reputed the most notorious misers of the Eighteenth century. The manner in which this couple were found after death to have disposed of their wealth was even more strange than could have been their method of acquiring it. The total value was £20,000, which was thus disposed of—£2,500 were found under a dunghill; £500 in an old coat, nailed to the manger in the stable; £600 in notes were hidden away in an old teapot; the chimney yielded £2,000, stowed in nineteen separate crevices. Several jugs filled with coin were secreted in the stable loft.—Cassell's Journal.

A Profession for Him.

The Man Who Really Enjoys Life.

To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and wonderful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand.

Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes every year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.—Vick's Magazine.

The Encroaching Lake.

One of the humorously attractive characteristics of a child is his large sense of personal importance. A little girl was walking with her father on the shore of Lake Michigan, where the waves were gently lapping up on the beach. Suddenly one came up higher than the others and swept over her foot, when she exclaimed, "Oh, papa, the lake stepped on my toe."

Dealer—This is the best parrot we have, but I wouldn't sell him without letting you know his one fault—he'll grumble terribly if his food doesn't suit him. Miss Fitz—I'll take him; it will seem quite like having a man in the house.—Tit-Bits.

"You say that you like Jennie," one lady writes to another in an endearing little note from the seaside, "because 'she never speaks ill of the absent,' but I guess the reason why you're able to say that is because you've never been present when you're absent."—Youth's Companion.

A mere question of sex: "Well, Willie, did you master your lesson today?" "No'm; I missed it."—Philadelphia Record.

Gratitude Toward Great Men.

We are told regularly—periodically told—that the eminent politician earns his country's gratitude. We have much to be thankful for, we little ones, but we have indeed cause to be truly thankful that we are not destined to earn such gratitude as that. How many politicians, say, during the past century may be said to have earned their country's gratitude? How many out of the great multitude of politicians? Is there one? Is there one man of whom his countrymen are willing to say, with an even nearly unanimous voice, "We owe that man our heartfelt gratitude; it is his; we give it him." As they sometimes cry in the arena of his former struggles: "Name! Name!"

Doubtless every man Jack of those extinct eminent politicians—for extinct they are as the dodo, to all practical intents and purposes—has his followers as he had them then. And equally true it is that he has his opponents, quite in the good old way. What sort of gratitude is it which consists in being set up by one set of men for another set of men to knock you down? Those eminent politicians have handed on their wrangles to our eminent politicians. We are wrangling just on the same old lines. If we look deeply into the matter we shall begin to doubt if we have advanced much farther than they did. We are making the same old plunges in the same old lucky bag.—All the Year Round.

Liver Complaint--Biliousness.

The chief symptoms of this disease are depression of spirits, foul coated tongue, bad tasting mouth, disagreeable breath, dry skin with blotches and eruptions, sallow complexion and yellow eyes, tired aching shoulders, dull pain in right side, faintness, dizziness and irregular bowels. This complaint in all of it forms can be readily cured by taking Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills as directed, and a lingering spell of sickness will often be warded off by their use. Sold at 25 cents a box by Smith Bros., Druggists. *

Undisputed Authority.

The United States Dispensatory says: That "Onions are a stimulant, diuretic and expectorant; they increase the appetite and promote digestion." The juice made into syrup as in Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup, has a specific action on the throat, lungs and air passages, it not only cures coughs, colds, croup and consumption, but is stimulating effect, strengthens and builds up the system afterward. As a tonic and restorative it has no equal. We solicit a trial in the most chronic and stubborn cases. Price 50 cents. Sold by Smith Bros., Druggists. *

In a dangerous emergency, AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is prompt to act and sure to cure. A dose taken on the first symptoms of Croup or Bronchitis, checks further progress of these complaints. It softens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membrane, and induces sleep. As a remedy for colds, coughs, loss of voice, la grippe, pneumonia, and even consumption, in its early stages, excels all similar preparations. It is endorsed by leading physicians, is agreeable to the taste, does not interfere with digestion, and needs to be taken usually in small doses.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

"From repeated tests in my own family, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has proved itself a very efficient remedy for colds, coughs, and the various disorders of the throat and lungs."—A. W. Bartlett, Pittsfield, N. H.
